

1783

In 1783 Captain John Paul Jones went back to France to carry out some business for Congress. There he accepted offer from Queen Catharine the Great of Russia, things did not work well in Russia.

John Paul Jones came back to France

1783

British warships left
New York Harbor.

1783

Now the war was over Alexander Hamilton began to study law. Within a few months, he was sent to the Continental Congress as a member from N. Y. There he saw that Congress could do nothing. It owed money, but had no power to collect any. Hamilton took his family to N. Y.
City and began to practice law. From the beginning he was very successful.